JAPAN IS CHESTY OVER HER RIGHTS IN THE FAR EAST

Makes No Comment on Note of Protest From America.

Question of Policy in Siberia Is Involved In Controversy.

Tokio, Jan. 17.—Government officials have not as yet made public the text of the American note protesting against the shooting of naval Lieutenant W. H. Langdon by a Japanese soldier at Vladivostok. Publicists, however, express the belief that Washington has not only asked reparation with guarantees removing a probability of similar incident in future, also has again pointed out to Japan the wisdom of conducting it not withdrawing altogether her troops from the country where she possesses no sovereign rights, but the titill of which is dominated by her military power.

This would open the old thorny question which Japan herself has been finding difficult in settling. A division of opinion exists in government circles as to the Siberian problem it is reported.

Leaders of the military party insist Japanese troops should remain in Siberia while the peace party is seeking ways and means to abandon any adventure which it is claimed, is ruinously expensive and without hope of compensation. The impression exists here that Japan will insist upon solving the question in her own way and at her own time, if for no other reason than to assert her doctrine that she is paramount in the far east.

The cabinet appears to retain its strength, and it is believed it will survive the impending session of the Japanese diet at which relations between this country and America will be discussed.

The correspondents of the Associated Press, who have just returned to Tokyo from a visit to many of the largest cities of the far east, found some uneasiness everywhere regarding relations between Japan and the United States. In well informed circles, these misgivings appeared to be based more upon what was desired as "Japanese resentment to any American policy calculated to curb Japanese expansion in Asia" than upon the California question. The latter problem, while touching Japanese national prestige and the interests of Japanese in America is apparently not regarded with the same seriousness as the questions of Japan's vital interests near Nippon.

In diplomatic circles here the opinion prevails that the situation does not justify the pessimism noticeable outside the borders of the Japanese empire. On the contrary, it takes the view that the attitude of both the Tokyo and Washington governments is based on confidence that a solution for troublesome matters in the foreground will be discovered.

Japan's popular press against California legislation appear to have been followed by an attitude of patience and restraint, cognizance being taken of the fact that America has encountered genuine difficulties in finding a solution for the triple problem of satisfying popular opinion on the Pacific slope, securing America's national interests and meeting Japan's desires.

Efforts of the American state department, through Ambassador Roland S. Morris have profoundly impressed the Japanese with the fact that the United States, for the reason, the killing of Lieutenant Langdon is genuinely regretted here because it is believed it will have the effect of re-opening the entire question of Japanese military occupation of Siberia, concerning which America has in the past sent several protests to Tokyo.

BANDITS KILL 2 GET AWAY WITH $12,000 IN CASH

Highwaymen In Auto Force Another Car Into Wreck and Open Fire Without Warning.

Toledo, Jan. 17.—Six bandits killed two railroad officers here at noon today after holding up an automobile and seizing $12,000 belonging to the New York Central railroad. Louis Schroeder and A. E. Long were killed in resisting the highwaymen. The bandits intercepted an automobile coming up town from the union depot with passenger fare receipts.

The six outlaws in an automobile edged the railroad automobile into the curb and immediately poured a fusillade upon the railroad officers. Schroeder and Long were drawing their pistols when they were shot down.

The bandits seized a satchel containing the money and sped away, exchanging shots with a taxicab driver who was giving pursuit.

The bandits purposely allowed their machines to collide with that containing the railroad men. Before they pitched forward fatally wounded Schroeder and Long managed to five several times at the bandit car, which had been damaged in the smashup. The outlaws darted a short distance up the street and jumped into another waiting car after one of their number had escaped on foot carrying the satchel.

By 12:30 every available police officer and detective in the city was assigned his place in a net spread to every corner of Toledo. It was reported that the police had obtained identification of the car, but no machine and no arrests might be expected momentarily.

Patrolman Willard saw the bandit car approaching after the first machine had been abandoned. He fell as he tried to draw his pistol and the bandits tried to run over him. He recovered position and fired twice into the car. He said one of the men fell forward with a cry of pain.

George Weber, taxicab man saw the shooting and ran out from an office and opened fire.

FARMERS PROTEST REAPPRAISEMENT ORDER BY STATE

Ask Postponement of Appraisalment Until Values Become Stable.

Delegate Says Farmers Will Demand Law Taxing Bank Deposits.

Columbus, Jan. 17.—Representatives of farm bureaus, county granges and other farm organizations appeared before the state commission today to protest against the order of the state tax committee calling for reappraisal of farm lands values in 61 counties. Delegations appearing before the commission this morning were from Logan, Perry, Putnam and Franklin counties. All asked for a postponement of the reappraisal for at least one year or until farm land values become more stable.

M. W. Long, representing the Logan county Grange, said fictitious prices on farm lands of a year ago had "gone glimmering" and many who had purchased farms at the high prices were being "forced to the wall."

He declared that the farmers were going to demand of the legislature laws which would force bank depositors and other values than land values on the tax duplicate.

The representatives of the farm organizations declare there was no way of determining the actual values of farm lands at this time on account of the decline of farm products and until these prices had become stable it would be impossible to place any kind of a value on farm property. The hearing before the tax commission will be continued throughout the week. The order for reappraisal has been suspended until February 1.

Quaker Committee Which Recently Returned From Revel Says Need of Help Is Great.

Philadelphia, Jan. 17.—Frederick J. Libby, commissioner of the American Friends' Service committee (Quakers), who recently returned from Russia, brought back information that many children are starving in Russia. Mr. Libby obtained his information from Arthur J. Watts, an English Friend, who has been engaged in relief work in Russia. Mr. Watts gave Mr. Libby a translation of the reports of Russian commissars from various Russian cities. It is upon these Mr. Libby bases his report.

It appears from the commissars' reports that the situation of the children varies greatly in the different centers. In others such as Smolensk, Yaroslavl, the children are reported to be obtaining sufficient nourishment. The men, five non commissioned officers and six privates, were arrested last night after Leslie West, a taxi driver is said to have made a complete confession of the part he took and named the soldiers. An announcement of the confession was made by Judge H. C. Wilkinson, special assistant attorney general named by Governor Kilby to make an investigation of the lynching. West was arrested several days ago in the belief he knew something of the lynching. He was said to have confessed he drove one of the cars.

Baird was in jail at Jasper awaiting trial for the killing of Private James Morris of Company M, after Morris had shot and killed John Northeutt, Baird's father-in-law. Northeutt had been arrested by Morris on a charge of disorderly conduct while the company was stationed in Jasper in connection with the miners strike.

According to Judge Wilkinson, West declared the soldiers were civilian guards, including overalls and these were burned away after they returned to town where they were encamped. The trip was made in two automobiles. The party went to the jail shortly after midnight, overcame the jailers resistance and bundled Baird into one of the machines after putting a towel around his neck. LEAGUE IS NOW ONE YEAR OLD

Membership Comprises 49 Nations of World, U. S. Not Among 'Em.

Much Good Is Accomplished In Spite of Its Handicaps.

New York, Jan. 17.—The League of Nations was one year old January 15, its membership now comprises 49 nations, representing, it is estimated, 1,250,000,000 people, or three-fourths of the world's population of 1,600,000,000. Eleven additional states, with a total population of 44,000,000 have formally applied for admission, while it is known that Germany with its 60,000,000 people wants to join as soon as she is given a chance. This leaves about 300,000,000 of the world's inhabitants completely outside the League.

The League began its life when the council met for the first time in Paris at the summer of President Wilson on January 16, 1920, with 29 members. By the time the first meeting of the assembly was held a few months ago, the membership had increased to 41. Eight have since been added.

At the time of its birth the League had no quarters of its own, but today it is installed in its permanent seat at Geneva, where an old hotel has been transformed into the Palace of the Nations. The general secretariat, under Sir Eric Drummond, has a staff of more than 500.

There have been 11 meetings of the council of the League and most of the subsidiary or semi-independent bodies contemplated by the covenant have been brought into existence. These include the international court of justice, the first institution of its kind in the world's history; machinery for the regulation of international treaties; commissions to deal with minorities, dates, economic blockade measures, public health, international statistics and the international labor office.

Preparations have been made for dealing with international communications and the creation has begun of permanent machinery for the regulation of international credits and the economic rehabilitation of countries ruined by the war.

One of the main objects of the League point to its intervention in the Poland-Lithuanian and Swedish-Finnish disputes, the latter over the Aland Islands, as among its achievements, although both cases await final settlement. They also emphasize its standing to the League's credit the restoration of more than 200,000 war prisoners and a campaign against typhus in Poland. They say it has furnished a government for the Saar district, formerly German, and that it has helped Danzig to assume its position as a free city under the League's special protection.

SHOWS NEW AUTO LOCK WHICH IS THIEF-PROOF

R. A. Caples, a veteran newspaper man and former private secretary to United States Senator Chamberlain, who was at the Hotel, Mr. Caples, President-elect, Monday last week in Marion, today explained to the mayor and members of the police department the mechanism of a combination lock which automatically locks the car when the engine is stopped and is connected with the horn in such a manner that any attempt to raise the hood starts the horn blowing. It is impossible to start the engine without knowing the combination and no two combinations are alike.

"Eighty per cent of the automobiles stolen," said Mr. Caples "are taken by joy riders and unskilled thieves because the cars have no locks or owners neglect to lock them."

Twenty per cent are stolen by professional thieves, who have master keys for every key lock. These locks have been on the western market for four years and there has never been a car stolen that was equipped with one.

The syndicate includes among its members several important banks and navigation lines, as well as representatives of labor organizations and socialist and Catholic societies, and special schools have been opened to teach the emigrants to read and write and to equip them both for farm and commercial work.

Will Fight Exploitation. To render assistance and protection to the unfortunate aliens, who so easily become the victims of unscrupulous "bankers" and "steamship agents" in this country, will hereafter be the chief form of social work undertaken by the Russian Young Men's Benevolent association, according to recent announcement of the organization, in which they state that a committee of six members has already been appointed to carry out this purpose.

Among its various activities, the association also conducts a handiwork class for Russian women.

WELL DONE GOV. COX.

Without anything that savored of boasting, Governor James M. Cox in his final message to the legislature gives an excellent review of Ohio's governmental progress during the past eight years and of the condition that confronts today. He also recommends some changes that will be helpful.

The message breathes the spirit of helpfulness rather than partisanship. It is not boastful of achievement, though well it might have been for under no administration in Ohio's history has more been accomplished for the general good of all.

The administration of James M. Cox has been fruitful in progressive changes. Serving Ohio as chief executive longer than any other, Governor Cox, renders account of his stewardship. It is a record of which Ohio may well be proud.

The cash balance in the treasury at the end of the fiscal year is over nine millions of dollars which is more than a million dollars greater than at any time in the history of the state. This is in spite of the fact that the legislature exceeded in appropriations its revenues by $2,000,000.

Two great monuments in legislative achievement remain to mark the Governor's tenure of office. Compulsory Workmen's Compensation and the Rural School Law.

Workmen's Compensation removed distrust of the courts, cleared court dockets, and brought relief to injured workmen and their dependents. The Ohio law has been followed by many states and has been endorsed as a model for the whole world to follow.

The rural school also stands as one of the governor's greatest works. To day in almost every part of Ohio the children of the farm receive the same educational advantage as the children of the cities. It has greatly decreased the drift from farm to city in Ohio and furthermore has resulted in a tremendous increase in the number of students attending the universities of the state.

The message teems with interesting information concerning the activities of various departments of the state government, together with results accomplished in recent years. It is typical in that it shows that the governor leaves office the same progressive that he was when he entered and that he possesses the same marked ability for leadership that has characterized his entire office life.

Governor Cox was highly honored by the people of Ohio. He has repaid that extraordinary recognition by keeping the faith. He leaves the office with the knowledge of having given Ohio the best that was in him, fearlessly, unflinchingly and faithfully, with no task shirked or dodged.

In saying goodbye, Ohio, all Ohio wishes him health, prosperity and happiness, knowing full well that his immense store of knowledge concerning Ohio's governmental affairs, his ripe experience and demonstrated ability will ever be at the service of his state in time of need. The Great State of Ohio will miss him. Well done, Jimmie Cox.

THE CHURCHES.

It is significant of the deepest feelings of humanity that the first organization formed in a pioneer settlement is commonly either a church or a Sunday School.

The mining camp or lumbering settlement has hardly got out of the tent stage, before some cheerful home missionary turns up, and proceeds to organize for worship and instruction. And the roughest men, instinctively welcome this form of association. They have probably seen somewhere from practical experience, the results that follow from church and Sunday school organization. They know that where the churches go, life and property are safe, there is less crime and drunkenness, and education and human welfare are improved.

When a community reaches a high state of civilization like Newark the tangible benefits created by church organizations are not so immediately apparent. But if you were close up over religious organization, it would not take long to see the difference. People would not care to live in a city that did not recognize the deepest aspirations of man.

Where the churches are decadent, a selfish spirit grows up in a community, that restricts all developments. There is no strange reminder that people should live for something besides their own selfish interests.

Effective church work accomplishes many results other than the spiritual blessings it was primarily established to create. A gospel of generous giving and helpfulness, makes people more willing to take heed and work for community causes. People who have learned to give up time and money to promote the generous aims of their church, are also apt to have public spirit, and to be willing to work for the benefit of the community in social, educational and civic ways. The Advocate last Saturday published the first of a series of short articles "Go to Church Tomorrow." These articles by a well known local minister will appear each Saturday for several weeks.

It may not have any significance, but it is an interesting coincidence that as soon as the women got out stage, the president elect found it necessary to order six fancy vests.

Several powers are willing to distrust each particular country making merely the condition that at the moment of disarmament they shall have the strongest fighting force.

After shouting for government economy, a lot of people rush down to the telephone office and wire their own assistants to support increased appropriations for their own district.

They used to say that spendthrift habits would take a family from shirt to shirt, but in three generations, but it does not take so long in these times of silk and shifts.

As Mr. Harding is reported to have ordered eleven "everyday" suits of his tailor, it is evident that Mrs. H. will have her time fully occupied pressing them.

When they claim that $75,000 is a large enough army, they do not seem to figure on the force necessary to protect the warehouse where liquor is stored.

The unemployed have been attending church in New York. It remains to be seen whether they will maintain as habit after they get work.

The Detroit street railway company has been ordered to Judge Dineen. He may say that he'll be damned if he'll do anything about it.

Thorough cleanups said to be necessary for baseball. And they've got to see something more cleansing than that ball bat.

Business won't be normal until they find some way to reduce the cost of building a $4,000 house from $12,000 at least to $8,000.

A lot of people who were formerly known as "old cooks," have been changed for the past year in seeking for public.

These halftone fellows will be put up some new models in the company if they keep on the way they are going.

THE MELTING POT

If Satan both father and mother, his indifference to whether he is a child or a man, may, perhaps the smallest, she are his greatest strategies.

The Worm.
If it be true a worm will turn.
Then let's a worm, that man,
First let's a demon, let's learn,
Then a reptilian.

Did Her Best to Express It.
Ann Collins says: "Other day I was in at Maggie Zee's when little Ben came in with his report card. He wasn't none two eger to show it, he'd let it ride to hide it under the coat, scuffle, but Maggie were two quick ter him an' caught it out. She opened it up an' then she says, 'Why Ben Zee?' says she, 'I don't know you, I tried to hide this.' It's disgraceful an' I'm ashamed of you." she says. "The very idee of coming home with zero on two of your studies" says she. "Well," says Ben, "beginning to cry, 'I told the teacher I didn't think I deserved zero.'" says "Ben" she said she didn't think so either but it was the lowest mark she could give," he says.

A Birthday.
Kind readers, if you are impelled to mention the fact that today marks the fifth anniversary of the Melting Pot, please toss off a glass of something or other to its health. If you have words of approval or criticism, please to shed them now. At least we have been persistent; the column has appeared in every issue of the paper since January 17, 1916, with the exception of a day or so when the life of one very dear to us hung in the balance.

Permit us also to say that we have missed the genial presences of Willie Gettr, Tillie Fong, Forget It, F. B. C., Willie Wimm, Lee C. Perfect and others who have contributed so much of interest and enthusiasm to the Melting Pot, and would suggest that this might be an auspicious time to come again. And in recognition of those faithful contributors who have failed us for years will the congregation please rise and sing, "You Made Me What I Am To Day?" Thank you.

Then and Now.
Her feet, like dainty little mice
Stole in and out, but woe!
Goshes are the fashion and
You ought to see 'em now!
Detroit Free Press.

Had old John Stuckling been alive,
Today he'd written thusly:
"Her little feet, stole in and out,
Quite hippositantly."
Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Just contemplate her narrow skin,
So short it makes us grin;
Stuckling himself would not assert
That her feet could steal in.

Always Something.
I am in love with Helen Hart.
So to her father I would be blind;
She's pretty as a picture, but
She's in an awfully frame of mind.
Luke McLuke.

And I'm in love with Hazel Nart.
Her praises I have loudly sung,
She looks as sweet as honey, but
If I get her I will get stung.

Did You Know
That the United States stands supreme in the art of engraving bank notes? Its products are sent all over the world. This peculiar branch of art requires great delicacy, discipline and watchfulness. The lettering and ornamentation of notes are distinct from the false work and vagrant engraving and done to some extent by machinery. The transfer press is of great importance, as is also the geometric lathe, which is used for the borders, backs and counters of notes.

BOYS' WORK SECRETARY ON DUTY AT Y. M. C. A.

The staff at the Y. M. C. A. is now completed with the arrival Saturday of Boys Work Secretary J. Roland Duxon of Baltimore.

Friends of Frank L. Johnson will be interested to learn that Duxon was associated with Mr. Johnson "over there." Duxon's route led him near where E. Randolph held "Y" headquarters.

Duxon came well recommended and assumes charge of the boys' division at once. He hopes to have old members and parents drop in to the new headquarters at the Y and make their acquaintance.

TO LIVE LONG!

A recipe given by a famous physician for long life was: "Keep the kidneys in good order! Try to eliminate through the skin and intestines the poisons that otherwise clog the kidneys. Avoid eating meat as much as possible; avoid too much salt, alcohol, tea. Try a milk and vegetable diet. Drink plenty of water, and exercise so you sweat—the skin helps to eliminate the toxins (poisons) and uric acid."

For those past middle life, for those easily recognized symptoms of inflammation, as backache, scalding "water," or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, "rusty" joints, stiffness, get "An-uric" (anti-uric acid) at the drug store. This is a wonderful eliminator of uric acid and was discovered by Dr. Pierce of Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. Send 10 cents to Dr. Pierce for trial pkg.

Stabilizing the Market

[National Crop Improvement Service]

UNDER certain circumstances it would seem wise that farmers store their grain for a better price, but when it is considered that if they take it to the elevator they will have to pay storage, it is always a question whether or not it will pay.

George H. Johnston, a banker of Wales, N. D., investigated this matter of November and December wheat storage by taking the average monthly price of cash wheat in Chicago for a ten-year period—1910 to 1919.

He found that the average price in the six months July-December was $2.4 and for the next six months, January-June, $3.5.

He also showed that the American farmers market 78 per cent of their wheat in the six months period July-December, and 22 per cent in the remaining six months. North Dakota growers market 75 per cent in the period July-December and 25 per cent in the remaining months.

"These tables," says Mr. Johnston, "show that for the years 1901-1910 the farmer who held his wheat until the six months period January-June received only 1.1 cents per bushel more than the farmers who sold shortly after harvest. This 1.1 cents would not come anywhere near paying interest on money, shrinkage in storage and insurance."

"In the past twenty years the North Dakota farmer who marketed his wheat in November-December made more money than the one who held his wheat until spring."

The sale of futures against wheat generally anticipates all storage, interest and carrying charges and those who tell the farmer that the speculators buy wheat when it is cheap in the fall and hold it for a rise and sell it when it is expensive are very much mistaken. Speculation anticipates all of these things so that the price instead of all ways being higher is often much lower as in the present instance.

Grain traders are divided into two almost equal bodies who watch each other like hawks. When the farmers' organizations learn to use this great distributing machinery many of their troubles will prove but imaginary.

He represents the French Comité d'Espérance (committee of hope). Varney in the early days of the war conducted a tag day in Newark for the volunteer American ambulance corps in France.

Our Boys and Girls

If a child receives a certain sum each week or month it is easy to teach him an early use of a saving bank. Let him get an understanding of the value of compound interest and make him feel that, by saving some self sacrifice, he is adding to the return of his labor. There is no need, however, to be arbitrary in regard to his savings. Begin by encouraging him to put something of what he gets into a definite object, a bicycle, a pair of skates, a tool chest or a wireless outfit. It is the habit of saving that you wish to establish, not the piling up of any definite sum. Before long he will be pretty sure to take an interest in the account itself and will not want to use all of it. A chifforon for baby's clothes can be made by a handy husband in his spare time at home. It can be small but large enough to be of real use. There should be three drawers for baby's clothes and on the top can be kept baby's basket and toilet articles. Paint it white and it will be a great addition to baby's room.

Reducing the Bust
Too large a bust is much more of a beauty defect than a small one and much harder to overcome. The flat chested woman always envies the woman who is plumply built while on the other hand the large woman sorrows because she has not the slender shape of her neighbor.

Bandaging is the best way of overcoming a too large bust and the most effective way is to take a straight piece of cloth and pass it across the back and under the arms, bringing the ends to gather over the chest. The cloth must be wide enough to extend from the chest to the waist line. The two ends of the bandage may be held together by means of tiny safety pins, so that the slack may be taken in as the reduction is accomplished.

As the bandage will have an uncomfortable way of slipping down over the bust, it is a good idea to fasten narrow pieces of ribbon over each shoulder with safety pins. In this way the bandage will be held and the ribbons will not interfere with one's appearance.

This treatment is not quite as simple as it appears. As it will be necessary to tighten the bandage a trade each day. In some cases it is advisable to remove the bandage every third day, resting a day and resuming it the next. Keep the bust tightly bandaged for a few weeks. This compression method is one of the very best ways of reducing the bust.

POPULAR FAVOR KEEPS HIM IN ATHLETIC WORK

The climb up the historic ladder to stardom has been no easy one for George Walsh, who will be seen at the Auditorium theater, where "From Now On," a thrilling Fox melodrama, is to be shown today and Tuesday.

Walsh has literally had to fight his way up. Fight his way up against odds consisting of the choicest collection of thugs and bruisers that ever efflu-times when his escapes are bewilderingly exciting. Lovers of romance plus excitement will find in the Auditorium theater the offering of the kind of entertainment they crave.

HIG GRIFFITH PRODUCTION AT THE GRAND THEATRE

Playgoers who have been privileged to see D. W. Griffith's great spectacles, "The Birth of a Nation" and "Hearts of the World," will be interested in the announcement that his recent colossal production, "The Fall of Babylon," has been secured for a special engagement at the Grand theater 3 days starting today.

From all accounts the magnitude of this super-spectacle is the most staggering and startling achievement Mr. Griffith has thus far brought into being, with more than 125,000 men and women

Mary Pickford will be seen at the Auditorium theater, in "Suds," a United Artists' photoplay of an entirely different nature to anything in which she has heretofore appeared. The attraction comes Thursday.

The theme of "Suds" is based on Maude Adams' famous play, "Op of Me Thumby," which she presented for a long time at the Empire theater in New York as well as on her triumphal tour of America. It is from the duet of Frederick Penn and Richard Price, two brilliant young English actors.

For several years Miss Pickford has had the character of Amanda Adick in mind and has been waiting the opportunity to present it in the proper manner and with the proper settings.

Since the completion of "Holloman" in the latter part of 1919, Miss Pickford has been at work with her staff of assistants on "Suds." Over four months were spent in the adaptation of the story for the screen by several of the best scenario writers in the photoplay profession, and this versatile little star went over the entire story again

INDIANS BOYCOTT BRITISH SCHOOLS

Withdraw Children From Schools and Colleges Receiving Government Support, As Protest Against English Rule.

New York, Jan. 17.—According to advices received by the India information bureau, the movement for non-cooperation with the British government in India is being developed in the boycott of government-supported colleges and schools. The withdrawal of children from all educational institutions which receive government support was one of the planks in the boycott platform formulated by M. K. Gandhi, native leader, and accepted by the country at the special session of the Indian national congress in September last. To date several Indian colleges have declared themselves in sympathy with Gandhi's movement and students have abandoned their classes and set up new colleges.

In Ahmedabad, under the chairmanship of Gandhi, a native college has recently opened. The inaugural ceremony was attended by over 5,000 Indian parents and students.

The student movement is not sporadic and fleeting, according to the information reaching the India bureau, but rather a serious attempt at establishing a new national educational system. To consider further the status of the student body in India at the present time of national crisis a conference of college students from all over India has been announced. The agenda which has been issued relative to this conference declares that "it is now high time that the students should assert their corporate existence and decide together the line of action that may be desirable in the best interests of the country."

In the wake of the new movement has come considerable apprehension on the part of the government followed by measures of repression. As in 1919, the Indian bureau is informed, two editors of the Punjab-based press have been already convicted. Following the arrests, demonstrations of sympathy took place in Lahore and Amritsar, principal cities of the Punjab, and at public meetings held in these cities resolutions were passed congratulating the editors and expressing sympathy for them. A date of cessation of business is also reported to have taken place in both centers. In Calcutta about 50 students of the Madrasah College went out on strike as a protest against the conviction of one of the editors.

PROPHET'S BEARD IN A MUSEUM.

Constantinople.—A precious reliquary containing portions of the Prophet Mohammed's beard, which Moslems regard as a sacred relic, is about to be removed from the mosque where it is preserved to a museum. The transfer, it is stated, is due to fear on the part of the Ottoman authorities that the sacred relic may be stolen or a museum is regarded as a safer place for its custody.

Delightful Taste, Immediate Relief, Quick Warm-Up.

The sensation of the year in the drug trade is Aspirinal, the two minute cold and cough reliver, authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories, tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed as the highest authorities and pronounced by the common people as ten times as quick and effective as whiskey, rum and rye, or any other cold and cough remedy they have ever tried.

All drug stores are now supplied with the wonderful new elixir, so all you have to do to get rid of that cold is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk a dollar for a bottle of Aspirinal and tell him to serve you two teaspoonfuls with four teaspoonfuls of water in a glass. SOAP AND SOCKS IN SUMATRA

Wearing of Hosiery Is an Indication That the Wearer Earns at Least $20 a Month.

Soap and socks in Sumatra—ten years ago the observant mind of a consular representative of the United States in that island would have devoted less thought to such matters, but now the internationalization of commerce gives soap and socks in Sumatra their place in the sun. The natives, it appears from a recent consular report, are more and more taking to wearing socks. Those simple garments of extremities, once judges, are becoming an indication that the wearer earns at least $20 a month. American socks are well thought of, as are American soaps, but more socks and soaps from America can be sold in Sumatra if the American dealers in these commodities will give more thought to local taste in decorating the boxes or wrappers in which they go on sale in the bazaars. These buyers in Sumatra, like their soaps and socks done up in bright colored containers; in fact, they are inclined to judge the contents by the beauty, from their point of view, of the box. The picture of an American manufacturing plant leaves them cold, nor do they care for a wrapper decorated with landscape in colors. Particularly in the matter of hosiery, they like the box decorated with some brightly colored picture which catches the eye and appeals to the imagination by its "human interest." One judges that it would be good policy for American dealers in soaps and socks to discard their present containers and employ some of the artists who make covers for the popular magazines to design and paint their new ones particularly for the Sumatra market.—Christian Science Monitor.

ODDITIES OF GERMAN VOTE

Peculiar Sentiments Revealed in Recent Balloting for Members of Reichstag.

The total number of valid votes cast at the recent election in Germany for the 446 members of the reichstag was 26,017,590. The votes that had to be thrown out ran into the thousands. One woman wrote on her ballot: "I am voting for you majority socialist this time, but unless I can get Westphalian ham that is made in Westphalia from now on I'll never do it again." Quite a few votes were cast for the Kaiser on the ground that "if elected the humiliation would serve him right." One man from Magdeburg deposited instead of his ballot a five-mark note without comment.

But the prize ballot came from Linden. It was a piece of wrapping paper, on which was written "Isaiah 12, 23-24." The verses read: "Show the things that are to come hereafter that we may know that ye are gods; yea, do good or do evil, that we may be dismayed and behold it together. Behold, ye are of nothing and your work of naught; an abomination is he that chooseth you."

The Circus.

The clowns disport themselves as of yore. The band plays its tuneful music. Acrobats swing high on shining trapezes. The elephants go through their ponderous moves. The seals flap their way to children's hearts. All is the same as twenty years ago—the circus does not change.

But with the passing of the years, the effect has changed. The trappings seem less bright. Their tawdry finery no longer seems pure gold. The quaintness of exotic cloaks no longer transports the mind to faraway lands. The acrobats seem much the same as those of the daily stage brings us. The elephants, for all their heavy training, seem but commonplace. Even the clowns seem less funny than in days gone by. Time has passed, indeed.

The circus does not change. But we, feeling the heavy hand of passing time, have changed. No longer do we feel as children. Through the glamour, we see the sadness. Forsooth, since our childhood days, we have progressed.—Milwaukee Journal.

Natural Wonders.

When waters charged with carbonate of calcium derived from limestone are evaporated they deposit masses of the carbonate, some of which are of great beauty. This process can be observed at many warm and "petrifying" springs and also in limestone caverns where stalactites and stalagmites are being formed, according to the United States geological survey. Mexican "onyx" is formed in this way. Its variations in color and texture, which make it attractive and valuable as an ornament, are commonly produced by impurities or inclusions, such as oxide of iron, or even mud and clay.

Why Spoil a Suit?

"Here's a ladder against this building. I'll bet you a dinner you won't walk under it." "I won't take your bet." "Ha! Superstition?" "No, horse sense. There's a man at the top of that ladder with a bucket of paint in his hand."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Safer Than Rifles and Powder.

Among the items purchased by the Mexican government for Francisco Villa and his followers are 800 plows, harness for 1,000 mules, 2 tractors, 20 mowing machines, 2 thrashing machines, 40 scrapers, 2 long auto trucks, an auto, corrugated iron for roofing and 2 large warehouses.

It requires keen vision to detect a virtue, but most of us can find fault with our eyes shut.

Unwoven Persian Rugs.

The author of a book called "When I Was a Boy in Persia" says that certain rugs used in Persian houses have not yet found a place in the American market. These are large felt carpets called luma. They are made, not by weaving, but by beating the wool together and then pressing it. They are very thick, warm and noiseless, with red, cream and white borders, and with a field dotted with red, black, white, green, blue and golden circles of wool—quite a Joseph's coat in color.—The Outlook.

Celluloid.

Celluloid, from which many toilet articles and imitations of ivory are made, is composed from the cellulose found in cotton cloth or raw cotton. It is treated with a solution of nitric acid which turns it into a pulp very much like paper pulp. It is then washed with water, which removes most of the acid. It is partially hardened and camphor gum mixed with it, when it is rolled into sheets and thoroughly dried. To manipulate it, it is softened by steam and then hardened by drying.

Why Frankfurt.

King Carl the Great (Charlemagne) was once defeated by the Saxons, and fled with his Franks to the Main. But they could find no fording place by which to escape the pursuit of their enemies. Suddenly a cart appeared and made for a spot where it crossed easily, thus showing the Franks where the river was fordable. So they came across the Main, and the place has ever since been called "Frankfurt" (the ford of the Franks).

Biblical Information.

The Lookout prints the following information about the Bible: "The Bible contains 3,593,480 letters, 810,697 words, 31,175 verses, 1,189 chapters, 66 books. The longest chapter is Psalm 119, and the shortest is Psalm 117. This is also the middle chapter. The middle verse, however, is Psalm 118:8. The longest name is in Isaiah chapter 5."

"The Vicious Circle."

Most people conclude that this phrase, which we hear so often nowadays, is of recent origin, but Amiel, the Swiss philosopher, who died in 1881, said, "I run in a vicious circle." There is also evidence that the phrase was in use as long ago as 1792, so we have not even the comfort of a new discovery.

To Destroy Red Ants.

Soak a sponge in sweetened water, wring and place where the ants have easy access to it. They will swarm over it and through it. Drop the sponge in boiling water and repeat the operation until the colony becomes alarmed at the loss of its workers and abandons the premises.

When Collector Is Lucky.

During Siam's intercourse with China for many centuries in the past unknown quantities of the finest china were brought over for the noble and royal households of Siam, and occasionally some of these pieces may be found and bought.

Infringement Resented.

In New Guinea each tribe has its own particular system of tattooing the body, and should a member of any other tribe imitate the pattern, it is regarded as quite a sufficient reason for a declaration of war between the two tribes.

Giving Him His Due.

"Oratory is a gift, not an acquirement," said the proud politician as he sat down after an hour's harangue. "I understand," said the matter of fact chairman, "We're not blaming you. You did the best you could."

Grecian Girl Provides the Home.

In some parts of Greece no girl can ever hope to find a husband until she has a home of her own. Hence, providing his daughters with houses is an onerous duty which falls to the lot of every father.

Kissing Once Custom at Dance.

Down to the middle of the Victorian era it was considered quite the proper thing in England for a man to exchange kisses with his fair partner at the end of a dance.

Conclusion.

Another reason why it would be impracticable for a man to carry a fur muff is because he would soon ruin it by wiping his mouth on it.—Arkansas Thomas Cat.

The Useful and the Beautiful.

The useful encourages itself; for the multitude produce it and no one can dispense with it; the beautiful must be encouraged, for few can set it forth, and many need it.—Goethe.

Poison in Bee's Sting.

The secretion of a honey bee's sting is about six-thousandths of a grain, two-thirds of which is water. The rest is the poison.

Pavement of Human Skulls.

There is said to exist a pavement at Gidawfa, Africa, in the making of which thousands of human skulls are alleged to have been employed.

Synchronicity

Married life will never be a complete success until the baby and its parents get sleepy at the same time.—Boston Transcript.

Policewomen in Europe.

The Swedish cities of Stockholm and Gothenburg were among the first in Europe to have women police.

A fellow doesn't cut any ice unless he makes his while the sun shines.

HIGHER IDEA IN CHIVALRY

Lover of Today Is the Man Who Can Make Little Sacrifices for His Adored One.

When the feminists prepare a primer for the propagation of the new idea in chivalry Sir Walter Raleigh will not be shown spreading a red velvet cape before the queen with hair and temper to match. He will be depicted robed in a bungalow apron, washing the dishes for a spouse not recorded in history, but who must be injected into the scene to offset the pernicious Elizabethan stuff.

Wonderful lovers are fine in romantic fiction, but when it comes to life in a Harlem flat or a Greenwich village studio, Mary Fisher Torrance, magazine writer, humorist, suffrage leader and Barnard graduate, roots for the husband who breaks down traditional labor leagues and performs the nocturnal china ablutions, says the Sun and New York Herald.

"Any right-minded man who marries a college girl or a woman in the professions knows that she cannot endure overhauling the kitchen sink any more than he could, and that she can get no more inspiration than he can from cleaning the gas range."

"It is just dirty, grubby, disagreeable work, and when sometimes in these days of servant rebellion help cannot be procured at any price it behooves the husband to pitch in and go 50-50 by getting the pesky little routine tasks out of the way as soon as possible," said Mrs. Torrance.

"To me the higher expression of chivalry is a man's performance of the dull, disagreeable chores, which every one of us wants to shirk, but which he does to save a woman from doing them. And it is the better class, educated, cultivated man who is the first to do those things for his wife when she is without help."

TIMES CHANGING IN CHINA

"Gentlemen" of That Ancient Country Evidently Have Revised Their Opinion About Labor.

A sign of the times from China. At Canton Christian college there are Chinese gentlemen—"gentlemen," says a writer in Asia, "of a class that formerly considered work with the hands degrading"—taking care of and studying a model herd of water-buffaloes. If they were capable of such an emotion the situation would probably surprise the water-buffaloes, for long as water-buffaloes have been a commonplace factor in Chinese agriculture, and their wide horns and clumsy figures almost inevitable in a southern China landscape, they have never before been "studied" in an agricultural school, to say nothing of being studied by gentlemen.

But the Chinese gentlemen of the present, or at any rate some of them, are interested in the future of China, and as that future must necessarily be agricultural, these particular gentlemen are interested in improving the water-buffalo. His temper is probably acceptable enough as it is, for, although cross with strangers, the water-buffalo is gentle with those he knows. A small boy, sitting on his back and sometimes playing a flute, controls him easily, and whoever has seen the creature dragging plow or harrow through the swampy rice fields will probably agree that "water-buffalo" is a proper name for him.—Christian Science Monitor.

Gas From Straw.

A gas derived from the destructive distillation of straw is being produced on a small scale at the experimental farm of the United States Department of Agriculture at Arlington, Va., says the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry in a recent article.

This gas has been used for motor fuel, for cooking and illuminating purposes, but its commercial value has not yet been determined. The office of development work of the bureau of chemistry is now making a series of tests upon it.

Fifty pounds of straw will produce about 200 cubic feet of gas, and the problem of liquefying or condensing the gas in order to enable it to be used practically as a motor fuel is now in process of solution.

Several valuable by-products are obtained during the manufacture of the gas.

Doctors for Bees.

When a honey bee staggers around holding his head and staring despondently into space he may be suffering from influenza, dementia precox or any one of a dozen other physical and mental disorders. At any rate he needs quick medical attention. He is getting it in the honey-producing regions of Manitoba, Canada. Bee experts say that the province will pour a river of honey on the world's pancakes this year and that the big production is due almost entirely to the elimination of bee diseases. Last year's average of approximately 65 pounds to the hive is expected to be materially increased by the hundreds of large apiaries scattered throughout the province.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Accidents Late in the Day.

Dr. E. Guth of Berlin proves by statistics in the Zentralblatt fuer Gewerbelygiene, that accidents occur more frequently in the last working hours, being also of a more serious nature. Considering this increase in accidents, and the decrease in work done during the last working hours, he concludes that not only workmen, but also employers have interest in reducing the number of working hours.

LOOK OUT FOR THE RUTS OF POOR HEALTH

There's Work to Be Done by Red-Blooded Men and Women with Strength and Energy

DO YOU FEEL FIT FOR YOUR JOB?

Pepto-Mangan Tones Up and Purifies the Blood of Men and Over-tired Housewives.

Take any man who works with his hands all day, every day, week in and week out. He uses up energy—lots of it. If he eats well and gets well his body renews its own energy. But there are days when he gets over-tired, he calls on his human engine to do more than it can. He strains. His blood gets thin. He feels weak and sluggish, maybe grouchy. He simply cannot get things done with his old-time vigor.

It is the same with women working around the house every day. Days come when they overdo. And they pay the price. Brain workers go through the same thing except that they are more likely to suffer from impoverished blood because they usually work in stuffy offices.

So when you get run down from overwork and strain, it is a good thing to know about that wonderful tonic, Pepto-Mangan. Begin taking it as soon as you feel the least bit run down. It will supply your blood with the food it needs. You will get back into your stride and pick up your work. You will be able to get things done, to achieve and get ahead. Thousands are doing it every day.

Pepto-Mangan is for sale at your druggist's in both liquid and tablet form. Take whichever you prefer. But to make sure you get the genuine, ask for "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" and see that the name "Gude's" is on the package.—Advert.

The Pear Tree

By HELEN EVERS

(©, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

The tall good-looking man at the desk brushed his hair back from his studious forehead and glanced up impatiently.

"Well Dan," he asked, "what is it this time?"

"Beg pardon sir," Dan said apologetically. "I know you asked not to be interrupted Mr. Hammond, but this young lady—"

"Young lady?" the man at the desk exclaimed, his tone expressed exasperation. "I asked to be guarded from young ladies, especially."

"I know Mr. Hammond," Dan hastened to say, "and I have guarded you well, but it's your fame, I reckon, Mr. Hammond, that has got here before you, and you beat a hach, and all."

"Dan," cried the master of the house fiercely, "will you stop talking and leave me; I was at a most interesting point in my work."

"But this lady," Dan went on unmoved, "is different from the rest of 'em, she says she's got to see you if only for a minute, and she's the one who moved into the little house next door."

Clark Hammond laughed with one of his sudden changes of humor. "The spinster person," he said, "I recollect now that Louisa told me a spinster had taken the house. Show her in, Dan, and let's get it over quickly."

The old serving man grunted as he shuffled out of the room while the "spinster person" entered in a sort of soft little rush and sat down in a big study chair. Professor Clark Hammond stared for a moment unblinkingly, the intruder was so different from what she expected. She held a huge basket upon her knees as she waited, almost trepidantly. The "spinster person" from next door had more the appearance of a small boy who had been caught robbing one's orchard, which was nearer the truth than the professor knew. She was, in fact, petite Nan Norris, lately of the city.

"Won't you," the professor asked pleasantly, "allow me to relieve you of that great basket?"

The young woman looked more startled than ever; then as the rose color flooded her cheeks she spoke quickly.

"You are going to be dreadfully angry with me Professor Hammond," she said, "and I owe you an apology. You see, I did not know that it was your tree and I stripped it completely."

"I am afraid," the man said puzzled, "that I do not understand."

"It was," she answered steadily, "your prized pear tree that I robbed, the one with which you have been making experiments. I thought it was on our line, we have recently rented the house next door and I went out one evening with some of the school boys to help me and we picked all your pears."

A light of pleasant reminiscence came to the blue eyes. "It was a glorious moonlight night," the girl added, "and the pears were small and sweet as sugar."

"When old Mrs. Ryan told me next day—Mrs. Ryan is the woman who is going to live with me here—that the pear tree was on your property, I—I had given away most of the pears, sent them to the city I came from, to people there who do not often have pears or nice things to eat, and the rest I canned."

Clark Hammond leaned back in his chair watching the various emotions flit across the girl's sweet face. His own first emotion of chagrin and disappointment gave way suddenly to sympathetic amusement.

"And now," he asked whimsically, "what are you going to do about it?"

"I cannot offer to pay for all those pears yet," the young woman answered as she removed the wrappings while the professor leaned forward incredulously to inspect the contents of neatly labeled jars.

"These are the spiced pears," the girl explained, "I hope—that you will accept them."

She regarded her offering ruefully. "They are the very first that I ever did up in my life, and they turned out splendidly." Her eyes were pleading. "Won't you?" she begged, "just as a sort of peace offering?"

There was something strangely disconcerting in that blue-eyed repentant gaze; it was Clark Hammond's turn to flush, and he emerged from the procedure pleasantly perturbed.

"I'll tell you what," he agreed boyishly, "just bring some pears over whenever I happen to feel that I'd like them. Dan will let you know."

The girl laughed. "I am proud of my own experiment," she said, then asked hesitatingly, "But what of yours?"

"A small matter," he generously assured her.

And one late fall evening Nan, entering the professor's dining room with her dish of pears, found there places laid for two.

"I hope," Clark Hammond said with new diffidence, "that you will stay to spare me another lovely meal. I have always wondered," he went on, as she slipped into the opposite chair, "how it would seem to have you there, my wife—and this the home I have dreamed of. Nan, will you stay and make my dream come true?"

The girl smiled as he came toward her, but after a while she raised a tremulous laughing face.

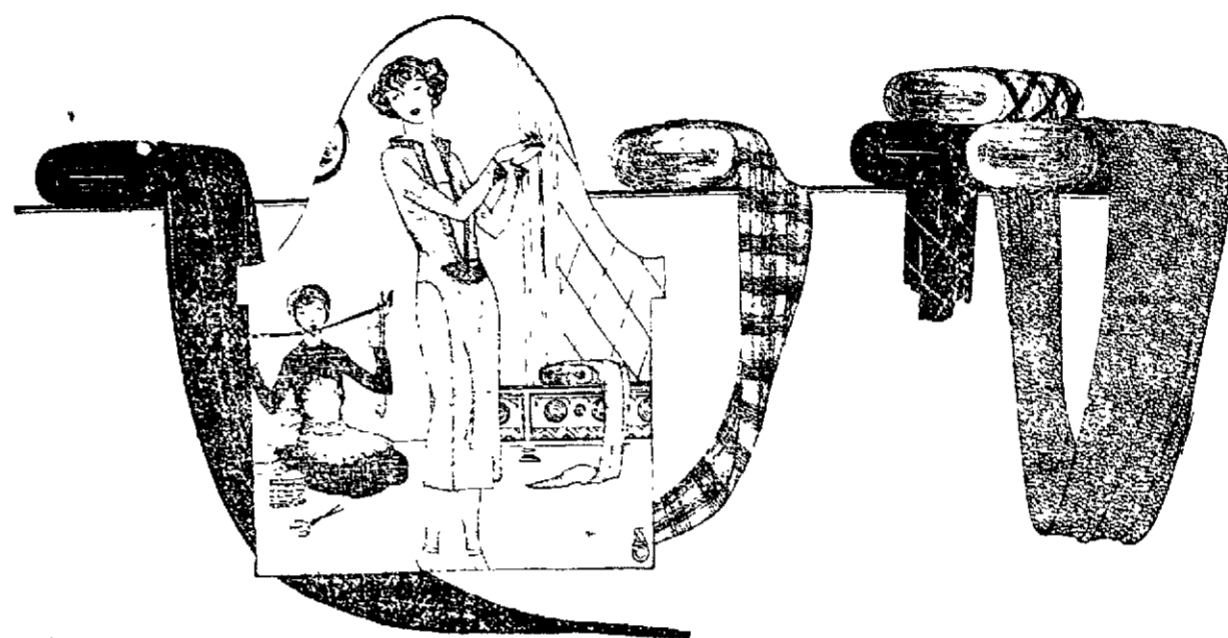

"Home," agreed Nan, "beneath our own vine—and pear tree."

Charity begins at home, and in these days it can't very well afford to travel.
